A Surprising Discovery in the Kaibab National Forest Collections

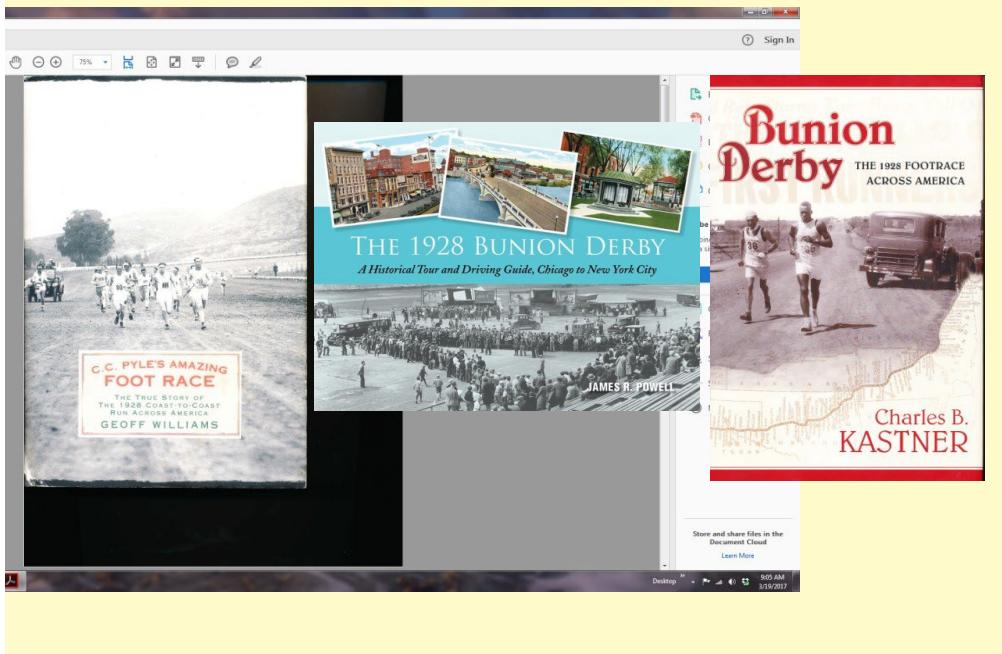

When I arrived on the Kaibab National Forest in June of 1990, I found the photo on the left in our collections on the left in our collections. I quickly learned that one of my mentors, Kaibab historian Teri Cleeland, was the first to nominate sections of Route 66 to the National Register of Historic Places in 1988. As a result of her research, she found this photo and it piqued my interest in learning more about the race. Teri became known as the “Queen of Route 66” and is pictured on the right with a reporter from NBC in Tucson in the early 1990s.

“Nimble Nick”

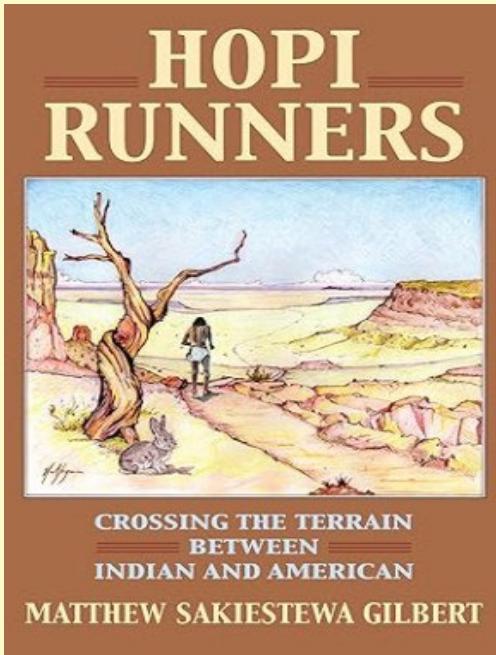

“Nimble Nick,” was sponsored by the Hubbell Trading Post and Lorenzo Hubbell Jr., and he barnstormed across the west running and winning races. He was also a priest of the Snake Dance, and lived at Old Oraibi, splitting time between Hopi and Winslow, in the employ of Fred Harvey.

A Personal Connection to the Past

On April 3rd, while volunteering with the Hopi Cultural Preservation office on a spring restoration project on the Kaibab National Forest, I asked my former co-worker Joel Nicholas if he knew about “Nimble Nick”; his response, “That’s my great-great-grandfather!” I then asked Joel to pronounce his name, so here it is!

I just became aware of this must-read book that goes into great detail about Nicholas Qömawanu and his participation in the 1928 footrace.

This is a great online discussion with Dr. Gilbert talking about his book:

Winslow Daily Mail: Tuesday Jan 17, 1928

Yesterday Mr. Dawson held a meeting with local businessmen at which $500, Winslow's share toward the big race was pledged, completing the list of cities who are financially backing the race.

One of the unique undertakings to call attention to 66 will be staged early next year when C. G. Pyle releases his 1,000 starters in his International Transcontinental Foot Race to run from Los Angeles to New York City. From Los Angeles to Chicago the race will be over U. S. 66.

$50,000 In Prizes

It is believed this race will attract lots of attention. Whoever wins the event will be richer by $25,000 and pretty much of a hero. All told the distance is 3,100 miles, the total marathon to be staked. Other prizes will bring the total awards to $50,000, a tidy sum of money to lay out for expenses. It is estimated that the promoters will spend no less than $300,000 to put the event over.

According to the promoters, about 1,000 entrants are to be permitted to start, though they would much prefer a smaller number.

Laconic, in true Indian style, Chief Quonawahu said yesterday on the eve of his departure from Winslow, that he was 'going to win—nothing more.' He boasted not of his prowess as a long distance runner and referred not to his great victory at Long Beach, N. Y., against a field of nationally known runners, but said briefly: 'I am going to win'.

With the race now established in the Oraibi area, Chief has been training hard, and the Oraibi people of various tribes are very anxious to see what the Indian runner will do. The Indians who had stopped at the Southern Arizona city for the last three days have returned.

And those who are sponsoring him, backing him and who have watched his training during the past six months in preparation for the event believe that the Hopi chieftain will bring victory to Arizona and to Hopi-land.

Over the vast stretches in Northern Arizona in the vicinity of Old Oraibi, 65 miles of Winslow as the crow flies, Quonawahu has covered incredible distances in periods that are almost unbelievable. In

According to a telegram received yesterday by F. M. Parker from Lorenzo Hubbell from Los Angeles, Nicholas Quanowaku, midget Hopi Indian, took first place in the 15-mile running race that C. C. Pyle held Sunday as preliminary to his March 4 cross country marathon from Los Angeles to New York. Quanowaku covered the distance in one hour and 22 minutes.

"Nimble Nick" received a hero's welcome in Needles, California. He was welcomed with cheers and applause from a large Native American crowd and a 12-piece Mohave Indian marching brass band accompanied him for the last two miles into town.

However, he incurred a heel injury that eventually sidelined him and forced him to drop out of the race eight miles east of Seligman. Nick had been one of the lead runners out of Los Angeles, but the heel injury and a sprained ankle were too much to overcome.

This ought to convince the most skeptical that Mr. CC Pyle's go-as-you-can run from Lost Angeles to New York, 3400 miles, will get started as planned on March 4. All entries in the race are given a physical examination, and our lower panel shows Promoter Pyle an interested spectator to the examination given to William C. Hart, a 65-year-old British veteran, by the camp doctor. The center panel gives a view of the runners hurrying out of their tents where they are living to the rigid training given daily. The top panel shows the runners at gymnastic drill. At the extreme right is shown Harold Johnson who walked from Detroit to Los Angeles to enter the race. Surely, it must be a great racked this cross-country stuff!"

The racers come from Flagstaff to Two Guns today and spend the night at that point near Canyon Diablo, coming to this city Monday and remaining over night, leaving Tuesday morning for Holbrook, their next stop.

There yet is interest in the race on the part of the local people but much of it subsided when it was learned that the local runner, Quomawahu, was out of the race.

WINSLOW TURNED OUT STRONG MONDAY FOR ARRIVAL OF PYLE'S STRING MARATHONERS

In spite of the fact that the pride of this section—Quonawabu, had dropped out of the big Pyle parade to the eastern seaboard, the people of this city had not lost interest in the big show that came here Sunday and Monday.

The carnival arrived and set up the tents and stands on Sunday at the Bazzell Camp Ground and on Monday morning, the racers began early to come up the long highway.

The carnival drew a 'big crowd on Sunday and Monday and there was a considerable delegation out early yesterday morning to await the arrival of the runners from Two Guns, where they spent Sunday night.

The incoming Pyle show was accompanied by thrumming of motors in gigantic buses, trucks and other cars of all descriptions bearing all the paraphernalia of a full-sized carnival show. The first cars to arrive were those of the officials and those bearing the carnival while a host of others having to do with the racers, arrived Monday morning.

The day proved a fine one for both the racers and spectators.

Quonawabu was "the prettiest 25-mile runner he ever saw." Others had something to say of the local man.

The affair was handled with good nature by the men in charge.

Many people saw the men arrive and others will see them leave about seven o'clock this morning.

Varied were the emotions expressed by the crowd gathered and their cheers and expressions of sympathy mingled, depending on the apparent condition of the men.

The bunch is off for Holbrook this morning for their stop to-night.

DILKS LANDS FIRST TODAY AT HOLBROOK; HINT PYLE MAY STRIKE FINANCE SHORTAGE

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., March 20 (UP)—The first indication that C. C. Pyle might run into financial difficulties in connection with his Los Angeles-to-New York foot race came today when the mayor of Albuquerque said that the prospect of entertaining the marathoners was not alluring enough to warrant a contribution of $2,000 to the race fund.

"I'll show them the detour," said Mayor Clyde Tingley when informed of reports that Albuquerque would be skipped by the trans-continental racers if the money were not forthcoming.

Pyle representatives here have denied any threat to omit the city from the race route but have insisted that Albuquerque should raise the money, as other points have done in order to share the race publicity. It appeared, however, that no funds would be raised for that purpose here.

The mayor of Albuquerque also had heard what happened in Holbrook when.....(P. 121 quote).

As it turned out, the dispute between Pyle and Mayor Clyde Tingley of Albuquerque escalated and much to the disappointment of runners hoping to enjoy the city, they were not allowed to come into Albuquerque. During the detour far to the south to Los Lunas, runners got caught in a blinding sandstorm!

After this reporting, the Winslow News continued to regularly report the race's results, throughout April and May, until its "Inglorious Climax", on May 26th.

Pyle's Pavement Pounders May Not Patter Through Conneaut

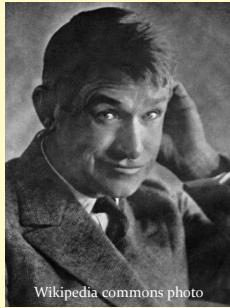

When Pyle's pavement punishers reach Conneaut Monday morning en route to New York, they may skirt the city, for today, Jay C. Keidel, secretary for the Chamber of Commerce, politely turned down Pyle's request that the Chamber of commerce here pay him $100 for the privilege of having his runners pound their way over Conneaut's pavements.

LIGHTS TESTED

Just what will happen no one knows. It is almost certain however, that Pyle's runners will pass through Conneaut for the only other road they could take in passing the city would be the South Ridge rd about two and one half miles south of Conneaut. This, however, would take the runners about eight miles out of their way and would increase their mileage for the day and "Cash and Carry" has said that the distance covered daily must be cut down in the future.

On May 14th, 1928, famed vaudeville actor and syndicated humorist Will Rogers (1879 to 1935) and a personal friend of leader Andy Payne, both from Claremore, Oklahoma, wrote in a letter to the New York Times:

"It's about time somebody gave a real endurance test some credit—the foot race to New York, and a 20-year-old kid from Claremore, Okla., leading it. It's all right to kid it and call it bunion, but no athlete in any other branch of sport could get up every day for three straight months and run from 40 to 70 miles. Sporting writers write about the 400-yard dash and the 75-yard run. Our comedians prize fighters fight only 15 minutes every two years. There is not a golf player in America that could make the same trip in an automobile. You will find it's the grit and heart that's doing this more than bunions, or ingrowing toe nails, so be fair and give 'em a break.' Yours, from Claremore, Will Rogers"

We Remember

“Remembering” was the name of the original Conneaut Area Historical Society newsletter. Joan Barnett was the last editor, and with her death and the Covid pandemic the newsletter has not been published for a time. It seemed fitting to name this new version of the old newsletter “Renewed Remembering,” in honor of the former editors including Louise Legeza and Joan Barnett who edited and published the newsletter for so many years. We hope you enjoy it!

Up to Date and Doing with the Conneaut Area Historical Society and the David Cummins Octagon House

Another Conneaut Area Historical Museum season has whizzed by as fast as the summer. We celebrated our 28th Anniversary Labor Day weekend with free hot dogs and festivities. It has been an eventful 28th years, full of progress, joys, and sorrows. In the last few years we have lost some long-time, faithful members, including Jack Mathay, Rosemary Bennett, and Karl Rowbotham in July. They are missed and mourned, both in the Society and in the Conneaut Community.

Our joys include reopening the David Cummins Octagon House with a June Open House. We plan to keep it open all winter as a base of operations for our historical society, since the historical museum doesn’t have heat. The Octagon House hours are Friday, 12 to 3, and on Saturdays and Sundays we are open from 12 to 5. Come and visit us. As well as antiques and a unique building, we have Conneaut history displays, scrapbooks, city directories, school year books, and military, musical, and other interesting exhibits.

We have a monthly history program on the third Wednesday of every month that we changed from Time Travel Tuesday to Hump Day History

Wednesday. Conneaut native Beth Anthony will be presenting our January 2025 Conneaut History program.

We are encouraging public school and home-schooling parents and teachers to bring pupils to the Octagon House for a field trip to glimpse into the past. Come and have fun and win prizes in local history bees, including Conneaut and Ashtabula County History Bees.

We also have a Senior Coloring group on the third Monday of each month. The ladies (but gentlemen welcome too!) enjoy coloring pictures to display and in their Conneaut and Ashtabula History coloring books which they take home with them.

Our research library is stocked with material waiting for people to come in and use, and we have over 100 scrapbooks crammed full of Conneaut History. Come and explore!

In December we had our first Octagon House Tea. We had to cancel the first two that we scheduled because of the weather. We had planned to have two separate teas because of space limitations, but we finally decided to have one tea on December 14th. The tea had a World War II Theme, featuring Glenn Miller music and Connie Naylor reading some of her grandmother's letters that she wrote as she came of age during the World War II years. Twelve-year-old Aubrie also modeled some of our vintage clothing to the delight of the tea goers. We are planning to have four seasonal teas a year: a spring, summer, fall, and Christmas tea.

We are working on several new exhibits, including the panoramic photographs of William Haines and a Pittsburgh & Conneaut Dock exhibit.

We are busy and we know you are too, but take some time to drop in and see us at the David Cummins Octagon House, and mark next Memorial Day on your calendar for the next season for the Conneaut Area Historical Museum and the David Cummings Octagon House.

Barn Quilt Square No. 13

In the fall of 2023, Steering Committee Member Debbie Herbel painted our museum Barn Quilt and it is proudly displayed on the front of our museum. We are thrilled to be a square in the Ashtabula County Barn Quilt patchwork and a traveler on the Ashtabula Barn Quilt Trail. The barn quilts celebrate Ashtabula County's agricultural heritage, including the Underground Railroad network, natural areas preservation, and Great Lakes maritime history.

Barn quilts stretch from the Ashtabula Lighthouse to the Pennsylvania borders and into Lake and Trumbull Counties. These trail guides take visitors to the heart and stories of Ashtabula County history. More than 110 barn quilts on both public and private buildings display the tourism and historical attractions of Ashtabula County. For more about the history, purpose, and quilt creators of the Barn Quilt Trail, go to their website at Ashtabula County Barn Quilt Trail.

The first barn quilt square on the Ashtabula County Barn Quilt Trail is located on the Blakeslee Log Cabin barn: 441 Seven Hills Road, Plymouth Township.

The Blakeslee Log Cabin: Hardy Log Cabin Home

John Gardner Blakeslee wouldn't be at all surprised that the log cabin he built in 1810 is still standing, 212 years after he built it on part of the 840 acres he owned. After all, he had built it to provide a lasting home for his family and it has lasted for more than two centuries. The log cabin is older than Ashtabula County, the county it now calls home, since Ashtabula County was officially created from Trumbull County on January 11, 1811.

The Blakeslee Log Cabin, located at the intersection of Route 11 and Plymouth Ridge Road, has weathered many changes during its more than two century existence, including renovations, the birth of Route 11, railroad tracks, Ohio Department of Transportation buildings, and modern homes, as well as the changeable Ashtabula County weather. For more than 200 years, it has been part of Plymouth Township.

Born in Plymouth, Connecticut on January 29, 1789, to Sala and Mary Blakeslee, John spent his childhood in Plymouth. When he reached his twenties he decided to strike out on his own and in 1809 he visited the Hubbard family in Ashtabula County. After spending the winter with his family in Connecticut, he returned to Ashtabula County to settle down permanently. He is listed in the 1810 census as a residential farmer in the southern part of Ashtabula Township. Plymouth Township did not exist until 1838, when it was created from Ashtabula Township and named after Plymouth, Connecticut, the original home of John and many of his family members.

The Ashtabula County Historical Society documents reveal that John built his cabin in 1810, and that he had a vision of how it would look when he built it, based on the cabin building customs of his day. According to a 2023 Jefferson Gazette story by Bob Ettinger, The Blakeslee Cabin “is a rectangular double-room cabin with front and back doors facing each other on the front and rear sides of the cabin. In its original incarnation, measured 21 feet by 28 feet and sits on a perfect north-south axis.”

The original roof boards of the cabin’s gabled roof were covered with hand-crafted wooden shakes and the porch shingles are visible from the porch floor. The walls are composed of split logs sixteen to eighteen inches thick and are hand-hewn for smoothness. The exterior walls are rough-hewn with half dovetail corner notching.

John’s 840 acres featured trees, trees, and more trees, thick underbrush, wildflowers, very few natural paths, and only one road, the Girdled Road that the Connecticut Land Company had hacked from the forest. The Girdled Road ran from Kelloggsville by way of Sheffield, through Plymouth and west through Saybrook, Austinburg and other communities before it ended near Cleveland.

John eventually erected a springhouse and other outbuildings and cleared a portion of his land for crops. Given the frontier custom of settlers helping each other with building cabins and barn raisings, it is probably that John’s neighbors helped him build his cabin. John had several neighbors. In 1804-1805, William Thompson and Thomas McGahhe and their families settled on lot number five in Ashtabula Township. Samuel White had settled on 200 acres of land near John’s property in 1806. In the spring of 1806, David Burnet settled on lot number twelve, and in 1807 Thomas Gordon purchased 240 acres in lot number six and settled there with his family in the spring of 1808. Captain Moses Hall emigrated from Connecticut in 1811, beginning his pioneer life on the northwest corner lot.

More families from Plymouth, Connecticut arrived in Ashtabula Township that first decade of settlement, including Zadock Mann, Joseph and Warner Mann, Lynus Hall, Titus Seymour and Elias C. Upson as well as John Blakeslee and his grandfather Asher. Following their Episcopalian traditions, several of the early settlers conducted the first Episcopal church service west of the Alleghany Mountains in the Blakeslee Log Cabin, with Zadock Mann serving as the lay leader. The same group later established St. Peter's Episcopal Church in Ashtabula.

The Blakeslee family genealogy shows that they produced a succession of Blakeslee cabin heirs, although not all of them continued to live in the Blakeslee cabin.

John Gardner Blakeslee was born on June 29, 1789, in Litchfield, Connecticut and he died in Ashtabula County on September 29, 1828, at age 39. He is buried in the old section of Maple Grove Cemetery in Ashtabula.

John married Esther Rice Hall Blakeslee Warner (She married David Warner after John's death) in 1813. Esther was the daughter of Plymouth, Connecticut pioneers. They had two daughters, Lucy and Charlotte and three sons, Hobart, Chauncey, and Salmon. Lucy Blakeslee later married Felix Ross and moved into the log cabin. In 1815, John's father Sala Blakeslee Sr. bought 193 acres of land from Nehemiah Hubbard in the vicinity of Ashtabula Harbor. John's grandfather Asher Blakeslee purchased 380 acres of land adjoining his acreage. In 1817, John's father Sala, Sr., his mother Mary, his brothers Sala II, and William, and his sisters Sabra, Mary, Caroline, and Asenath moved to Ashtabula County. John also added a two-room shed to the north end of his cabin around this time, possibly to accommodate some of his family members.

After John died in 1827, his younger brother Sala II, continued to work at the Blakeslee fam. He married Lidea Pierce in 1830 and in 1834, they moved to Oquawka, Illinois, later settling in Knox County, Illinois. Esther lived in the cabin, presumably until her death in 1865. After Esther's death until about 1871, Geroge Williard owned the cabin and then he sold it to Julia Whalen, a Blakeslee descendant. After purchasing the cabin for $700, Julia lived in it until 1902, when the DeSorbes family bought it and lived there until 1989. In 1989, the Ashtabula County Historical Society purchased the land and the cabin.

Although John's descendants no longer occupy his original log cabin, his descendants continue to leave their footprints across Ashtabula County history. John's brothers expanded the family roots to Iowa, Illinois, Idaho, and closer to home in Cleveland, and Ashtabula County, including Ashtabula and Conneaut. One of the Blakeslee descendants, Robert Frank Blakeslee and his wife Lyda Nelson Blakeslee had Conneaut roots and are buried in Glenwood Cemetery.

Since 1989, the Ashtabula County Historical Society has been restoring and renovating the cabin, adding such improvements as a wooden porch floor to replace the dirt floor, repairing walls and sagging ceiling joists, and deteriorating floor boards.

In 1998, The Blakeslee Log Cabin secured a place on the National Register of Historic Places. It is opened every September to celebrate Log Cabin Days with historical festivities. The Blakeslee Log Cabin is one of the rare survivors of the early log homes built in the Connecticut Western Reserve and it is a tangible heritage of the hardy settlers who forged new lives in the wilderness of the Connecticut Western Reserve.

The Eighth Annual P &C Dock Children's Christmas Party

The Eighth Annual Company Union Children's Christmas Party held December 13, 1981, from 1 to 5 p.m. at the American Legion Hall in Conneaut attracted approximately 250 children, their parents or grandparents, and some retirees.

Each of the children was interviewed by Santa and was given a box of candy and a stocking filled with many goodies.

Cookies were donated by some employees and others were obtained from Squire Bakery in Ashtabula. Soft drinks were furnished courtesy of the Automatic Venders of Warren, Ohio. Ray Bisbee donated all of the coffee. Among those who helped serve the luncheon were John Coe, Mark and Pam Brady, Carol Eaton, and John Carpenter.

A special thankyou is extended to Ed Javorich who beautifully portrayed that old gentleman St. Nicholas, on very short notice. Thanks to Carol Eaton there were extras stuffed in all the stockings.

Due to an oversight, our regular photographer was not engaged for the evening. Gerry Anderson when he learned of our predicament agreed to share with us the pictures that he had taken of the party. So he deserves our “Special Special thanks.”

John Eaton and Marty Wickham wish to thank all who helped in any way to make this Christmas party a success. On behalf of the dock family, we thank the Christmas Party Committee for organizing and planning work involved in producing this annual event.

Rich Eckonen, clerk in the storeroom swallowed a Y-shaped piece of chicken bone which became lodged in his throat. Local hospital personnel were unable to remove it and he was transported to Erie. He was placed on a tilting operating table, given anesthetic, and turned almost upside down while the bone was extricated without surgery. Rich was soon back on the job, but to him the thought of a chicken dinner was not quite as savory as it used to be.
